DETAILED ACTION

1. On 5/21/2008, the petition under the unintentional provisions of 37 CFR 1.137(b) is granted.

Election/Restrictions

2. Applicant's election without traverse of claims 1-16 and 25-28 in the reply filed on 04/27/2006 is acknowledged.
3. Acknowledgement is also made of the election of specie of formula (II-a-2), page 1.
4. Claims 17-24 are withdrawn from further consideration pursuant to 37 CFR 1.142(b) as being drawn to a nonelected shaped article and multilayered system, there being no allowable generic or linking claim. Election was made without traverse in the reply filed on 04/27/2006.
5. The elected specie was not found among the prior art. The elected specie is considered to contain allowable subject matter. The search was continued with the findings below.

Priority

6. Receipt is acknowledged of papers submitted under 35 U.S.C. 119(a)-(d), which papers have been placed of record in the file.

Claim Status

7. Claims 1-16 and 25-28 are pending.
8. Regarding the status of amended claims 19 and 21-23, the claims are drawn to a nonelected group and therefore are not considered at this time.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

9. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

10. Claims 1-16 and 25-28 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Ikeda et al., EP 0557721 A2 in view of Rotzinger et al., U.S. Patent No. 5,955,522.

Ikeda teaches a crystalline polypropylene resin composition comprising a crystalline polypropylene resin and a β -nucleating agent (abstract). Ikeda also teaches a method for improving light stability by adding piperidine to the composition as in instant claim 16. The composition may also include an elastomer (page 9, line 38). Polypropylene meets the limitation of an α -olefin comprising greater than 4 carbons and is a thermoplastic polyolefin. The β -nucleating agent is added to the polypropylene resin to produce a β -form content of 40 to 97% (page 9, lines 15-18). The polypropylene resin may comprise a homopolymer as in example 1. The resulting mixture is placed in a mold at 60°C to solidify to form a 0.5mm thick sheet. The molding temperature meets the limitation of instant claim 8. Since the haze value is determined by the amount of polypropylene resin in the composition, it is expected that the amount of polypropylene resin would be added to optimize the haze value. Ikeda teaches β -nucleating agents in general but not the specific compound of formula I. However, Rotzinger teaches preparation of a piperidine light-stabilizer, containing the component formula (II-a-1) of the instant claims (see Rotzinger, column 35). It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to use the piperidine light-stabilizer of Rotzinger in the polypropylene resin composition of Ikeda because Ikeda teaches the addition of β -nucleating agents for the purpose of improved aspect of product color (i.e. light).

Conclusion

11. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
